

CARNOT'S REMAINS ARRIVE IN PARIS.

FUNERAL TRAIN GOT IN AT 3:10 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING.

Excitement Unabated And Many Italians Have Been Beaten—Fear Is Growing that if an Italian Was Killed It Would Precipitate an European War.

PARIS, June 27.—[Special]—The funeral train arrived at 3:10 this morning and the excitement continues unabated. Many Italians have been beaten and it is now thought that the murder of an Italian by a frenzied crowd anywhere in France now might be the signal for a European war. The newspapers of France and Italy and England are displaying extraordinary caution in not expressing this universal fear; but it is the one topic in Paris. It is less than a year since a fatal conflict between French and Italian laborers at Aigues-Mortes stirred both nations to such a pitch of excitement that only most prompt and strenuous exertions by both governments prevented a series of bloody reprisals. There is hatred between the two peoples difficult to understand or to explain, but it is as bitter as between French and German.

The whole French army is under arms in all parts of France to suppress the first signs of any outbreak against the Italians. If the government can thus overawe the popular feeling all will be well, but the outbreak may come where there are no troops just at hand and if so it may prove a match to a powder magazine. Italy would as certainly respond with a like bloody demonstration against France, just as the Roman mob attacked the French embassy in Palazzo Farnese after Aigues-Mortes. The question then would be whether the governments could longer restrain their people.

Santo, the murderer, has boldly asserted that he is an anarchist and therefore upon the anarchists are the people pouring the vials of their wrath. Further than asserting that he is an anarchist the prisoner has not apparently made any statement, but it is reported that the police are convinced that the assassination of President Carnot is the result of a carefully planned conspiracy, in which a number of people are concerned. This, however, is only a report, as the authorities are engaged in a most exhaustive investigation into the prisoner's career and recent movements, and no official statement on the subject is likely to be made until this inquiry is completed.

RIOTERS HOLD STREETS OF LYONS.

Italian Cafes and Stores Burned and Looted—Hundreds Under Arrest.

LYONS, June 26.—When the body of Carnot borne on a gun carriage passed through the streets to the special train which was to carry it to Paris, the people knelt or stood with hats off praying. Instantly it had passed the rage of the people smothered their sorrow. Men and women, who a moment before stood reverent and mute before the nation's martyr, now gave vent to their pent-up excitement and rage. Everywhere could be heard cries of "Long live Carnot and death to his murderer." The sullen transition in the feelings of the crowd boded ill for the resident Italians and when some of the more hot-headed men in the crowd proposed that an attack be made upon the Italian quarter the proposition was received with wild cheers of approval.

In almost less time than it takes to tell it an enormous mob, at the head of which was carried the French flag, was en route to that part of the city given over to the Italians. Before the police could intervene to prevent the trouble the mob had attacked all the shops belonging to the foreigners and sacked them. The proprietors and their families were forced to flee for their lives. It was finally found necessary to command the cuirassiers to charge the crowd in order to clear the streets.

As the night advanced the rioting in the city became more widespread, and at one time it appeared as though the mobs would take full possession of the town. Thousands of men and boys paraded the streets and attacked and sacked every Italian store they came across. Much of the loot obtained by the rioters consisted of liquors. Part of the wines and brandies captured was drunk by the robbers, while what was not so disposed of was either poured into the streets and set on fire or burned in the casks and barrels, which were rolled into the middle of the thoroughfares. Many acts of violence were committed and threats of death to the Italians were freely bandied about.

A number of arrests were made when the trouble was at its height, but the prisoners were subsequently liberated by the gendarmes, who were vociferously applauded by the mob. Many of the ringleaders who had fallen into the hands of the police only later to be set at liberty were carried in triumph to similar riotous scenes that were being enacted in other quarters of the city.

The streets are strewn with debris of every description. The left side of the River Rhone was the scene of the worst acts of violence. Here the troops who were summoned to aid the police had the utmost difficulty in restoring order. In the center of the town the mobs were more amenable to orders and the troops were repeatedly cheered. During the night a total of 300 arrests were made.

The dispatching of detectives from Paris to Certe, from which latter place Santo came to Lyons, has caused consternation among the anarchists there, and many of them, fearing the police dragnet would be thrown around them, fled the town. Late in the day the police searched the lodgings of a dozen anarchists, but so far as known found nothing to implicate them in Santo's crime. Four arrests were made.

Before the funeral cortege set out a mob set fire to several of the Italian cafes. A commissary of police begged the crowd to respect the affliction of Mme. Carnot, but the rioters replied with shouts of: "We will avenge Carnot."

The streets of the city throughout the day have been thronged with crowds of excited people. A large number of the stores are closed. Serious rioting has already occurred and more trouble is anticipated. Were it not for the presence of the overwhelming force of troops stationed in and about the city there is little doubt that the mob would attack the palace of justice and wreak vengeance upon the murderer.

A strong detachment of police has been on guard about the Italian consulate throughout the day and will remain there until all danger of an attack has passed. The police are apprehensive of trouble after dark, but every precaution is being taken to promptly quell any further rioting.

At the suggestion of the civil authorities the military commander of Lyons has withdrawn the troops from the streets, but they are still held in reserve, under arms, at their barracks. The cavalry keep their horses saddled and ready to turn out at a moment's notice.

A company of infantry is also held in reserve in a house adjoining the Italian consulate to be ready to support the police in case of an attack.

At the request of the local authorities the Italian consul has removed the Italian flag from outside the consulate. The rioters, however, had not touched the flag or the escutcheon.

BACK TO HIS CAPITAL.

Remains of France's Martyred President Taken to Paris.

LYONS, June 26.—The body of M. Carnot was taken from the prefecture last evening and placed on the train that conveyed it to Paris. After prayers for the dead had been offered the casket containing the remains was carried out and placed on a gun carriage. While this was being done salutes of artillery were being fired, trumpets were sounded, and drums were beaten. Every civil and military honor was shown the dead. The square in front of the prefecture was densely thronged as were all the streets leading to the railway station. Troops and gendarmes kept the route clear. The procession that followed the body was a lengthy one. It included all the civic and military authorities of Lyons and a large number of delegates from different cities and towns.

Mourning emblems are worn by nearly every man, woman and child in the city, and no dwelling seems too poor to display the emblems of grief from its windows and about its doors. The majority of inhabitants are wearing small mourning badges of immortelles in their buttonholes in addition to crepe around their arms.

All the flags are draped with crepe and a countless number of portraits and engravings of the late president, surrounded by crepe, are to be seen displayed in the windows everywhere. The remains of the late president rested in state at the prefecture. The face had a calm, peaceful expression.

PARIS, June 26.—The funeral of President Carnot has been fixed for Sunday. The remains will be laid in the Pantheon, where Victor Hugo is buried, beside those of Lazare Carnot, the president's grandfather. It is said M. Carnot shrank from going to Lyons. When, however, his friends began to talk of the Lyons anarchists avenging Vaillant's death the president thought he was in honor bound to go. Daily, since Vaillant's attempt, the president received menacing letters, sometimes ten or twelve in a single day. He disdained these threats and would not allow any precautions for his safety to be taken.

MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY.

The Civilized World Joins in Condemnation of the Murder.

ROME, June 26.—King Humbert yesterday gave an audience to M. Billot, the French ambassador. His majesty expressed his deep grief at the calamity that has befallen France. The interview throughout was cordial.

The pope was painfully impressed by the news of M. Carnot's death. He at once sent a telegram of sympathy to M. Henotaux, French foreign minister. The pope has celebrated mass for the repose of the soul of M. Carnot.

Following is the text of King Humbert's telegram to the French government: "The execrable act which has deprived France of chief of state whose person inspired universal respect has moved me to the profoundest depths of my heart. The day consecrated hitherto to the two nations by mutual glory [this refers to Solferino], unites them to-day in common mourning."

The chamber of deputies was draped with mourning as a mark of respect for and sympathy with France. Presmier Crispi made a short and appropriate address in which he referred in warm terms to the late President Carnot, and then asked the chamber to adjourn as a token of sympathy with France. The motion was agreed to. During his remarks Premier Crispi said: "To our deepest sorrow the murderer is an Italian. But anarchists have no country. Their country disclaims them. The chamber of deputies joins in the universal mourning for the loss which France has just sustained."

PARIS, June 26.—The telegram of condolence sent by Emperor William of Germany to Mme. Carnot expressed his majesty's and the empress' sympathy with the widow of the president, and added: "May God give you strength to support this terrible blow. He was worthy of his great name. President Carnot died like a soldier on the field of battle."

MADRID, June 26.—In the senate and chamber of deputies the ministers and leaders of the several parties expressed their abhorrence of the crime that has robbed France of its chief executive. The dead French president was warmly eulogized by all the speakers, after which both houses adjourned for a week as a mark of respect to his memory.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Secretary Gresham has forwarded to Minister Eustis the following official card expressing the sorrow of the nation:

"WASHINGTON, June 26, Executive Mansion—Eustis, Ambassador, Paris, France. Express to the minister of foreign affairs the profound sorrow with which the President and the American people have heard of the atrocious crime which has robbed the sister republic of its wise, humane and patriotic chief magistrate.

"GRESHAM."

VIENNA, June 26.—Count Kalnoky, Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, and Prince Windischgratz, Austrian prime minister, called at the French embassy here and expressed their condolences. Emperor Francis Joseph has telegraphed his regret and sympathy to Mme. Carnot and Prime Minister Dupuy.

LONDON, June 26.—Following the precedent adopted at the time of the death of the late President James A. Garfield, the British court will go into mourning for a week out of respect to the memory of the late President Carnot.

ROME, June 26.—All the Italian bourses have been closed out of sympathy for the great loss France has sustained by the assassination of President Carnot.

Council and Chambers Meet.

PARIS, June 26.—At a cabinet council held yesterday Premier Dupuy formally announced to the ministers the murder of President Carnot, and an official message containing the same formal intelligence was sent to Senator Challemeil-Lacour, president of the senate, and to M. Casimir-Perier, president of the chamber of deputies. The government will propose to the chambers that the remains of the late President Carnot be accorded a national funeral.

Santo an Anarchist from Youth.

ROME, June 26.—Cesare Giovanni Santo, the man who murdered President Carnot, is the son of Mari Broglio and Antonie Casavie. He joined the anarchist association at an early age. In January, 1892, he tried with two fellow anarchists to start a newspaper, but was unable to raise the funds necessary to float it. The police watched him until the end of 1893, when he went to Switzerland.

SILVER MEN IN LINE.

Western Republican League Members Have a Scheme.

DENVER, Colo., June 26.—As the delegations to the seventh annual convention of the National Republican league, which meets to-day in the Broadway theater, arrive the enthusiasm grows greater and there is every reason to believe the confidence that has attended all other republican gatherings this year will accompany this one. There are probably 1,000 delegates in the city and 1,500 or more visitors here as camp followers. It is expected 1,000 more delegates will be on hand to-day.

There has been a lot of talk by the silver state delegates and there is no doubt there is a concerted movement, led by Dubois and Goodwin, to put the convention on record, if possible, as favoring the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. There are a few Nebraska and Kansas delegates who will join them, and also some from Missouri.

The executive committee of the league was in session last night until near 12 o'clock. Reports of officers and other routine business were discussed. The principal topic had reference to the finances of the league and how to meet the expenses. Secretary Humphrey has done considerable traveling during the last fourteen months and the expenses of the present convention are heavy. It will take $7,000 to meet the obligations now outstanding.

DEATH IN THE WIND AT KEIGHLEY, KAN.

ALITTLE TOWN NEAR WICHITA BLOWN OFF THE MAP.

Courier Came to that Town on Horseback and Returned Before Details of the Accident Could be Secured—Gales Do Great Damage in Other Places—Church Wrecked.

WICHITA, Kas., June 26.—At 7:30 last evening a terrible cyclone from the southwest struck the village of Keighley and nearly wiped the little town off the earth. All the telegraph wires are down and the information was brought to Leon by a courier who rode a swift horse.

Owing to the fact that the courier left immediately after the cyclone passed over the details are over. It is known, however, that one man, Ed Thurman, was killed outright.

Many were pinned under falling houses and their fearful wails indicate serious injuries.

It is thought that many were killed, as far east as the people could see it. Two general stores, the largest buildings in the village, were crushed like egg-shells.

A freight train was standing on the Frisco track at the time and six cars were lifted up and turned upside down. This would indicate that the cyclone was at least 200 feet wide. The wreck standing on the track piled up thirty feet high and trains cannot pass until sometime to-morrow night.

Windstorm Does Damage.

PEKIN, Ill., June 26.—A severe windstorm passed over the central part of Pekin from the southwest shortly after midnight last night, unroofing houses, blowing down chimneys and leveling trees. ### Church Wrecked at Greenbush, Ill.

MONMOUTH, Ill., June 26.—A cyclone swept over the little town of Greenbush, south of here, about 9 o'clock last night. The Methodist church was completely wrecked, but fortunately the church-goers had been dismissed a short time before and no one was injured. A number of large barns and sheds were demolished and trees and fences were overturned. Hail accompanied the wind and broke many windows. Narrow escapes are reported.

Electric Storm Near Decatur.

DECATUR, Ill., June 26.—A violent electric storm raged in Macon county last night, the wind lifting two barns for L. L. Heuck, leveling oats, wheat and corn and damaging shade trees. ### Jurors in Ellis Case Disagree.

LANSING, Mich., July 26.—After forty-four hours' deliberation the jury in the forgery case of Attorney-General Ellis was discharged at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The jurors stood seven for acquittal to five for conviction from the first ballot. It is doubtful if the case is ever tried again. ### TOWN AND RAILROAD FIGHTING.

Citizens Shoot Into a Train at Round Pond, Oklahoma.

NORTH END Okla., June 26.—Bloodshed has at last resulted in the conflict between the Rock Island railroad and the town of Round Pond, and three persons have been wounded in a skirmish between the opposing forces. The trouble is getting more serious every hour. The presence of United States marshals has not had the quieting effect desired.

The crowd of citizens blew out the cattle guard on the outskirts of the town Saturday night and warped the rails so that trains could not pass over for some hours. That trains were not ditched is due to the vigilance of the deputy marshals. Last night three people were shot. A mob attacked the south-bound Rock Island passenger train, that came through the town flying, with a hot fusillade of bullets from their Winchester. More than a hundred shots were fired at the train, and some of the cars were perforated.

A Mr. Fossett of Kingfisher, who was standing on the platform, had his hat shot off and received slight scalp wounds, and another passenger was struck in the throat by a bullet. Johnson, a newsdealer of Round Pond, was hit in the leg with a heavy charge of buckshot.

During this delay the deputy marshals did not fire a shot. Marshal Nix said he wished if possible to avoid a conflict, which would surely result in considerable loss of life. Marshal Nix is here to-day, and he says all the power of the territory will be required to put down lawlessness in Round Pond.

TO RETAIN DR. C. A. BRIGGS.

Union Theological Seminary Changes Its Constitution—Assembly Forecalled.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The Union Theological seminary has changed its constitution so as to give the board of directors power to employ others than ordained ministers as members of the faculty. The change was made at the meeting of the board just before the general assembly opened at Saratoga. The seminary is thus restored to an independent basis. Should the general assembly depose Dr. Briggs from the ministry he could still be retained at Union.

They want to go to work at once and will ask the companies for protection should unionists attempt to prevent resumption.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

Both Houses Adopt Suitable Resolutions—Sorrow on Every Hand.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The assassination of President Carnot banished all other thoughts from the public mind, and congress never did a more popular thing than to promptly adjourn out of respect for the bereaved republic across the sea and its dead chief. The warm affection which pulses through the veins of the American people finds vivid illustration in the public and private utterances here. The expressions of sympathy and sorrow in the senate and house were simple, brief and heartfelt. This was especially noticeable in the words and tone of Mr. Hitt of Illinois, who seconded in the house the formal resolution to adjourn of Chairman McCreery of the foreign affairs committee. Mr. Hitt had known President Carnot personally. He had the highest regard and respect for him, and his voice trembled as he spoke.

The death of President Carnot was the sole theme about the senate and was recalled in a prayer marked by deep feeling delivered by Rev. Dr. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the senate. Immediately after the opening prayer, Senator Morgan, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, 1. That the senate of the United States unites with the American people in expressing to the people of France their sorrow and sympathy in the national bereavement they are suffering from the cruel blow of an assassin which was aimed at the peace of France and fell upon the heart of President Carnot. And as a mark of respect due to the memory of the wise, virtuous and patriotic president of the republic of France, the senate will, at the close of this proceeding, stand adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

2. That the President of the United States is requested to communicate this expression of national sorrow to the government of the republic of France and to Mme. Carnot.

Senator Morgan made a brief speech in which he referred to the patriotism of the people of the French republic and the cordiality of the relations between the two republics. At 10:30 o'clock the senate adjourned.

FLOOD IN THE MISSOURI.

St. Joseph in Danger from the Ravages of the River.

AS FROM THE GRAVE MISS OBRIST ROSE.

EVANGELIST V. P. WELCH
TELLS OF HER CURE.

He Commanded the Devil to Leave Her Body and the Evil Spirit Departed—For Twenty-Nine Years the Sufferer Has Been a Hopeless Invalid.

Miss Obrist and her recovery after twenty-nine years of invalidism is the only thing talked of by Janesville church folk. In Court Street church Miss Obrist's pitiful case was especially familiar. For years the church had extended comfort to her and members of the church knew every detail of her growing infirmities. They believed her beyond the possibility of recovery—the victim of a spinal trouble that had broken down her nervous system and sapped her strength.

That she had recovered in a day was hard to believe.

It seems like a miracle. How did it happen—what were the successive demonstrations? This has been the most common question.

Only two can speak—Evangelist V. P. Welch, who made the plea over the sufferer, and Miss Obrist herself.

This is not the first remarkable cure Mr. Welch tells of having seen. The number, he insists, is up among the hundreds. His first experience was eleven years ago, soon after he had gone into evangelistic work. He and his sister were called to pray with a woman who was on her death bed. He prayed and the woman got up and walked. She walked three blocks and is alive and well today.

Has Seen Many People Cured.

"Were all the persons you have seen cured, sufferers from nervous troubles?" asked a Gazette reporter. "By no means. I have been the instrument in curing inflammatory rheumatism, bronchitis, Bright's disease, and purely an external affliction like a burn. I saw a deep burn on a woman's face cured in six hours so that no mark of it remained."

"How did you learn of Miss Obrist's case?"

"We had been holding tent meetings here for a week or two, as you know, and the people seemed afraid to come in. We couldn't find out why it was and last Thursday morning we were praying about it. We were seeking directions as to our course and suddenly I received with great clearness the message: 'Whatever your hand finds to do that do ye.' We stood and began to look around to see what there was at hand. It was then that somebody brought us word of Miss Obrist. We visited her that same afternoon. 'I sat down by her and said: 'You are possessed of a devil.' This she resented, but I told her that sickness could not come from God, that where there was sickness there must be a devil. She whispered that she was a Christian but I said: 'When you accepted Christ you did it for the forgiveness of sins but not in the fullness of the resurrection and in having Christ flow all through you.'"

Anointed With Oil.

"No, she said, 'that is sanctification and I never was able to believe in that.'"

"I saw there was no antagonism to the spirit and said I would anoint her with the oil of cleansing. This I did Thursday afternoon, using olive oil. She said she felt a strange thrill pass all down her spine."

"After this I read her from the scriptures the passage directing sufferers to call upon the elders of the church and told her that when she called we would come. This was Thursday afternoon, Friday she sent a call for us to visit her Saturday afternoon at 2:30. We did so and the spirit commanded me to lay hand on her throat. I did so and commanded, 'Thou dumb devil come out of this woman!'"

"As I took away my hand she spoke the first loud word she had uttered in fourteen years—'Jesus.' There was a hubbub in the room instantly, the women making such a fuss that I had them all put out. I then laid hands on Miss Obrist's feet and prayed for strength. She straightened out her feet and put one out from the covers."

Then she arose and the woman who had been a helpless invalid for a quarter of a century stood alone. After she had thus tested her strength we left her to dress. Some of the women wanted to help her but I said:

"No, she is a well woman, and a well woman needs no maids."

"I can dress myself," Miss Obrist said and she did. The servant girl brought in clothes, Miss Obrist not having had any made in years. The woman who had been so helpless an hour before was able in the short time that we left her to pull on stockings and shoes and to dress herself completely. That finished we let in the woman they had never known except as an invalid.

She Was Like a Child.

"For three hours Miss Obrist sat and stood, rested and walked about the room. She never felt safe in walking unless one of us were on each side of her, for she had the sensation of being very high in the air and of being likely to fall over. In fact she was precisely like a child learning to walk."

"I am strong enough, but I do not know where my muscles are. How shall I move them?"

"I prayed to God to touch her muscles, and in a moment one of her feet was pushed out and then the other and she walked. Many called on her in the next few hours—one being an infidel who heard her tell what had been done for her and threw up his hands saying "I believe."

"Sunday, as you know, a carriage was sent around for Miss Obrist by some kind friend and she got in and rode over to the tent meeting. She got out and stayed for two hours, finally rising and giving her testimony. She climbed back into the carriage as easily as any middle aged woman would, stopping at the home of a boy on Racine street who is a sufferer from spinal trouble. At her home she has since been receiving visitors constantly, and telling them of her cure."

"The case must not be confounded with anything known as faith cure. Nor is it anything that is in many. It is simply obedience to the word of God and the wonder is that everybody doesn't see it."

Many Janesville doctors have treated Miss Obrist, but have failed to conquer the peculiar nervous trouble that was at the root of all her ills. The sufferer fell while getting over the fence twenty-nine years ago and struck her back on a log. From that day she was a confirmed invalid. In 1877 she touched her foot to the floor for the last time and nearly fifteen years ago she became so nearly dumb that she never spoke above a whisper. She knew nothing of the appearance of Janesville until last Sunday, for she was unconscious when moved from the country into her present home eleven years ago and she was not lifted from her bed in all those eleven years.

Farren and others of this company constitute an organization strong and capable.

Swaney and Ainsley Case Goes Against One of the Defendants.

The case was heard by Justice Clarke, who found Ainsley guilty and fined him fifty dollars and costs. The evidence failed to show a partnership, which let Swaney out. William Smith appeared for the defense.

Lowering Prices Is Our Business.

That we pay strict attention to our business is proven by the fact that no other store in the state succeeds in putting down prices as we do; no store in the country where economy can be practiced so successfully as here. The unequalled power and resources of this peerless organization are everlastingly pushed to bring about extraordinary money saving chances and this is one of them; a very extraordinary one. ## COUPON A WINNER AT MILWAUKEE.

H. D. M'KINNEY'S COLT CAPTURES THE PURSE.

Easy For the Son of Director Chief Who Could Have Gone Much Faster If It Had Been Necessary—Jersey Belle and Carrie Onward Win.

Henry D. McKinney's stout colt Coupon, won the $300 purse for two year olds in two straight heats at Milwaukee yesterday, the best time being 2:32, or 2 1/2 seconds faster than the colt trotted here. The Sentinel says that Coupon was a strong favorite, and well he might be, for he showed at Janesville that he is too fast for the others in his class. His fastest time at Janesville was 2:35 1/2, but in the last heat yesterday Mediumwood drove him home in 2:32, and he didn't seem to have any trouble whatever in making that time. He could have gone much faster if necessary, for he made the last half in 1:12 1/2. The summary: First race, 2-year-old trot, purse $300, two in three heats. Coupon, b. c, by Director Chief, H. D. McKinney, 1:12 1/2. Mediumwood, b. c, by Birchwood, Oakland stock farm, 1:13 1/2. Bay B, b. c, by Synde, George W. West, 1:13 3/4. Time, 1:38 1/2, 2:32.

Coupon will be campaigned this season by Samuel L. Caton, the noted horseman, who will take the fast strippling through the grand circuit. Carrie Onward won the Milwaukee 2:22 class pacing race, and Jersey Belle the 2:50 class trotting purses, both being the winners in these classes here. John C. Chadwick has Maggie N. in the 2:13 trotting class, which came off this afternoon, meeting Aurora Prince and Lizza for the second time.

HARPER'S HISTORY OF THE WAR

Harper's Pictorial History is universally recognized as the best history of the war yet published. This superb work has never been sold for less than $16 to $30. It has been sold only by subscription and but a very few men have been able to buy it.

The pages are the same size as Harper's Weekly and the work contains all the illustrations appearing in that great paper during the war. The work was edited by Richard Grant White and Henry M. Alden and is authentic, complete and reliable.

We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish Gazette subscribers with this splendid history of twenty-six parts at ten cents a part. These twenty-six parts will contain over one thousand war pictures and will make two handsome volumes when bound.

Many official documents of priceless historic value are quoted in full in the copious foot notes, such for instance as Lincoln's inauguration speeches, articles of federation of the early states, constitution of the United States, ordinance of secession, and many important papers, speeches, etc. The war story is consecutive and very fascinating. The introductory chapters, leading up to the struggle, and the chapter on the reconstruction period, are by some of the first writers of the age.

Worn Out in Harness.

In the harness of every day business work men and women wear out prematurely. For some of us it is not easy, for others, again, it is impossible to get out of harness. It is the inflexible yoke, the strongly forged unbreakable shackle of imperative servitude needful to our eyes and those most dear to us. The weight of it often bows many of us into the grave before our time, but it is undoubt edly true that there is a means of rendering the burden less onerous, and of mitigating the ailments that unrelenting toil—especially of a sedentary kind—has a tendency to produce. Over worked clerks in counting houses, mill operatives, bookkeepers, typewriter and others testify to the reviving, restorative effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitter, and its power to renew physical and mental energy when overtaken and on the wane. Dyspepsia, falling vigor, rheumatic, bowel and kidney complaints yield to this beneficent medicine, which is a preventative of malaria and counteracts the effects of exposure in inclement weather.

THE LOST SON.

Touching Story of an Episode at the Railroad Depot.

It is uncertainty that makes heavy eyes and wrinkled foreheads. The death of a child is sad, but parents can almost always see some tinge of hope in the heavy hues of sorrow. But when a child is lost, when its feet have strayed away from home, no one knows whither, when the mother does not know whether to think of the boy as alive or dead, as good and innocent or sunk in shame, then comes the horror of uncertainty.

In talking about disappearances to a newspaper man the other day, a man told a touching story of what happened at the gates of a railroad station not far away nor very long ago. A father and mother had taken seats in a Pullman car with a little golden-headed girl. The white signal showed in front, the hiss of the air-valve gave the sign to start and the heavy train moved slowly out of the station. On the next track an inbound train had just emptied its load of humanity and the passengers were walking toward the waiting rooms in a long procession, which the departing tourists scanned with indifferent eyes.

A happy, careless-looking youth sauntered along with them, and when he passed the little family on the Pullman car the golden-haired child gave a happy cry:

"Oh, mamma, we must get out, there's brother." The lady leaped from her seat to look, but the train was gathering speed, and the young fellow was already past. Before she had time to turn again the father had rushed to the end of the car, and a few words to the conductor, something about a "lost son," caused the train to stop, and the man hurried back down the platform. He came back in a few moments, and merely shook his head. The train again started, but the mother's face was hidden in her hands till many miles were passed.

REVOLVING HOUSES.

A Parisian Paper Tells a Very Ingenious Story.

Many very queer dwellings have undoubtedly been constructed in this country. Circular houses, with rooms shaped somewhat like pieces of pie, have been built several times, and octagonal houses are to be found, probably, in every state. But it is extremely doubtful whether any such house was ever constructed as is described in a Paris journal as being exceedingly popular in the United States "on account of the cyclones."

This house, in behalf of which the Paris paper informs us that a patent has been taken out, is the maison revolver, or revolving house, and is described as follows:

"The model represents a house mounted on an axis or pivot, and at its two extremities are an immense and powerful weather vane and a cannon. When a gale comes, the house turns on its pivot, obeying the movements of the weather vane.

"This movement points the cannon in the direction from which the gale is blowing, and at the same time automatically discharges the gun.

"As is well known, the effect of a cannon shot on a cyclone is to produce such a concussion in the atmosphere as instantly to break the force of the wind, and even to change its course."

The inhabitant of a "cyclone region" of America is able, according to this Parisian account, to sleep in peace in his revolving house, confident that, no matter how suddenly the tempest may come, his weather vane and pivot cannon will take care of him and his family.

Anglo-Celtic.

By the way, at the risk of a digression, what an unjustifiable word "Anglo-Saxon" is, and how needlessly offensive to talk of the Anglo-Saxon race or empire. It is the Anglo-Celtic race and empire. An Angle and a Saxon are practically the same thing. Why should we now, after 1,400 years distinguish between two German tribes? But an Angle and a Celt are entirely different, and they have taken fairly equal shares in building up the British empire and that larger English-speaking world beyond, into which the British commonwealth is destined to merge. We are all shot through and through with the Celt. Are there any British families, I wonder, that are purely Teutonic?—A. Conan Doyle.

Enemies to Railways.

When railways were first made in England they were opposed by many people for the most absurd reasons. Sir Astley Cooper, a famous doctor in his day, said they would ruin the nobility in a few years by cutting up their estates. The agent of the duke of Bridgewater kept gamekeepers night and day with instructions to shoot all railway men who trespassed on the duke's grounds. But the surveyors managed to get the better of the agent. Choosing a moonlight night for the purpose, they caused a number of shots to be fired in a wood. The gamekeepers at once hurried to the spot to catch the suspected poachers, and while they were gone the surveyors examined the land.

Eviction by Rain.

The law in Brazil forbids the eviction of tenants for the nonpayment of rent, but the landlords have adopted a very effective method of bringing delinquents to time. The climate there is very wet, and a sloping tile roof is in almost universal use. It is easily put on, easily repaired, affords excellent shelter from the tropical rains, and, what is deemed a capital advantage, it is easily taken off. When a landlord's patience is exhausted, therefore, instead of warning the tardy tenant out of the house he takes off the roof for repairs, and the first heavy shower does the rest.

BEAUTY PILLOWS.

They May Be Filled With Rose Leaves, Violets or Pine Needles.

It is now the fad to have a beauty pillow, as it is called, which is a euphemism for something very hard and uncomfortable for the head to rest upon at night. The soft reposeful feather pillows which have hitherto been the confidants of our midnight meditations are to be cast aside as deleterious—too sympathetic possibly—and their place is to be taken by a stony hearted article distended with rose leaves, violets, pine needles or some other stuffing poetically suggestive, theoretically healthful and practically so hard that that proverbial head that wears a crown could rest no more uneasily than does that of the simple republican faddist.

Vegetation is not the only filling recommended for these new beautifiers. Somebody has lately advised the use of paper torn into tiny fragments. But it would seem that discrimination should be exercised in the selection of material for this sort of stuffing. A pillow full of unpaid bills, rejected manuscripts or outgrown love letters might be a fruitful source of restlessness and nightmare, while, on the other hand, one with an agreeable and soothing table of contents would be calculated to allay mental disturbance and induce slumber. A woman inclined to melancholia might be cured by sleeping on a cushion stuffed with the best jokes that can be cut from the newspapers and funny publications; insomnia might be ward off by old sermons torn very small indeed; a too volatile and frivolous spirit could be curbed by a pillowful of death and funeral notices—in fact, there is no limit to psychological possibilities in this direction, and the experiment is certainly worth trying. While we are making up our minds just what sort of a pillow is best suited to our particular case we can use one stuffed with curled hair if feathers and down are too warm.

The sketch given shows a moire and taffeta gown. The first skirt of moire has an application of pointed guipure around the bottom. The second skirt is of taffeta draped at the side. The full pointed bodice of taffeta has moire revers covered with guipure and decorated with pendent ends of moire. The balloon sleeves, also of taffeta, have guipure cuffs.

GRANDMOTHER'S TRUNK.

If It Contains a Brocade Gown, You Have a Treasure.

Some women are fortunate enough to have a grandmother's trunk in the garret. Perhaps it is covered with hide and decorated with brass headed nails, or it may be a stout wooden chest made when work was done to last. But, whatever the outside may be, the inside is sure to be rich with the treasures of a past generation, so old fashioned that they are now new fashioned and may be brought forth and remodeled to fit the dainty lady of today, who cannot realize that the woman who originally wore them was then as fresh and blooming as her granddaughter now is.

The flowered nainsooks and muslins of 50 years ago are considered eminently fashionable this season. They are almost sure to be fine in texture, and although tender with age, if they are made up over a silk foundation, which will bear the brunt of wear, they will be found still serviceable. Panniers are quite permissible this year.

Perhaps grandmother's trunk contains an old brocade gown. If so, it is a treasure indeed, for it will make a beautiful court coat full skirted and with wide revers opening over a ruffled vest. If there is not enough of the brocade to make both body and sleeves of the coat in these days of inordinate arm drapery, let the sleeves be of plain goods harmonizing with the color of the brocade. If the latter has a black background with pink flowers, the sleeves may be of pink satin covered with black lace. A large cuff and a lace frill at the wrist are the appropriate finish.

A sketch is given of a Louis Quinze gown of sky blue taffeta, with blue and chestnut brown flowers. The bottom of the plain skirt is trimmed with white lace arranged in coquilles. The corsage crosses surplice fashion back and front over a plastron of the silk. It is trimmed with white lace, and the belt is covered with lace. The round panniers terminate at the back under a short silk drapery forming coquilles. The draped sleeves extend only to the elbow and are finished with a frill of lace. The white straw hat is trimmed with black moire and forgetmenots.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 3d N. Y. Cavalry and of the 18th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart, Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."—Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892. These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

Never Got so Far.

"You say that you have played Macbeth?" said a New York theatrical manager to an applicant for a position.

"I have acted the role of Macbeth fourteen times."

"Well, let me hear you repeat his defiance to Macduff."

"O, I never got so far as that. The audience always made me quit before I got to that part."—Texas Sittings.

The Wearing of Black.

Black makes a woman look slender; it is the thinnest color a fat woman can wear. It also makes a person look old. It is the worst color an ageing woman can wear. When a kindly disposed employment agent is anxious to place a young nurse girl in a responsible position she always tells her to get a black dress, knowing that it will make 16 appear 26.

Crowded to the Doors.

At 8:30 this morning Bort, Bailey & Co's. store room was crowded to the doors. It was impossible to wait on the people. It seemed as if every lady in Janesville was there to get a fan. The above statement came from a neighboring merchant and can be corroborated at the same time, as we said this merchant was wondering if advertising brought the crowd. Of course we said not a word. Their fan sale was not announced until last evening's Gazette appeared.

SAYING AND DOING.

"Is the sermon done?" was the question asked of an elderly lady as she left the church door.

"No," was her answer, "it's all been said, and now we have got to do it."

This wise answer reveals that the elderly lady in her long life had become convinced of the marked difference between saying and doing.

To promise is one thing; to execute one's promise is another matter and one that is often extremely difficult to fulfill and it's right here that there comes the difference between "saying" and "doing."

We have been saying to you for the last ten years about the uniformly high character of our goods; about the extremely low margin of profit we have added to the cost and about our cash money-saving method of buying and our constantly increasing trade and new customers continually being liberal purchasers convince us that we are really "Doing and Saying" that is we are doing what we are saying.

William Murphy, or "Yale" Murphy, the clever shortstop of the New York baseball club, is the smallest player in the National League. He is only 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs but 125 pounds. He is a famous batsman, however, and plays his position with rare skill and success. In 1893 he was a WILLIAM MURPHY, member of the Yale varsity baseball club and averaged two hits in every game against Harvard and Princeton. He was born in Somerville, Mass., 25 years ago.

President Luscomb of the L. A. W. Charles H. Luscomb, president of the League of American Wheelmen, is a prominent Brooklyn lawyer and a well known member of the national guard. He was president of the organization four years ago, but was voted out of office because he was in advance of his fellow officers in road improvement.

READY FOR SACRIFICE.

A Woman Who Wished to Accompany Her Husband on His Last Journey.

"I was once sorely tempted to allow a sati," said the resident, spreading a dust cloth over our knees. Long ago, as I was making my tour of inspection, I camped near the castle of a little chieftain. In the morning I heard that he was dead. When his father had died, some ten years before, his eighteen wives had been burned. I did not wish this incident to recur; remained in the neighborhood and took the necessary precautions, quotes Temple Bar.

"Next day, after breakfast, I was told that a lady wished to speak to me, and passing into my shemiana, I found a tall native lady, closely veiled, with two female attendants. 'Sahib!' she cried to me, 'there is an order out in your name, separating me from my lord. We have always heard that the English is a good and just government, which will not oppress the weak; therefore I cannot believe this great wickedness of you. For twenty years have I been at my lord's hand to cherish and comfort him; never have I failed him in his need; now my lord has gone on his long journey, to-day he yet lingereth, but he will soon be gone, whither, if I join him not now, I shall never find him, and through all the ages he will wander alone! Will you, who are not our people, dare to do this thing! His father is there, and his father and their wives, and they will mock him, saying: 'Wert thou on earth of such small account that no woman accompanies thee across the barrier? and that proud woman, the daughter of the Nesodias, was she afraid of the fire, like a Nautch girl? Sahib! I shall seem unto them as a coward and a deserter, and shame will be on my lord and on my father's house, and on me. Do not do this act of oppression.'

"I longed," he said, "to give the permission she wanted, for indeed it did seem to me an act of oppression to lay a hand on the customs, nay, the very heart-beats of a people, and say, 'Stop! not your way, my way!' The life and customs of a people are built up together, depend on each other; take out one brick, the whole edifice is in danger.

"My cheeks were hot as I explained my impotent sympathy, and it was a relief when, with a gesture of despair, she swept out my tent. She died that night; there was no sati."

Partridge and Blacksnake.

While a Pennsylvania farmer was passing through a wood early in the summer, a hen partridge fell fluttering at his feet. Thinking the bird might be blind, he stooped to pick her up, but she could see well enough, for when he was about to grasp her, she flew towards the bushes she had just left. Arrived there she looked back again, and presently ran up to the farmer once more, clucking constantly and with her wings down. As the man walked on a little she flew ahead as if to guide him always returning when she found he was not moving in the desired direction. By little and little she drew him to a tree, near the root of which he saw a nest full of eggs, and a black snake in the act of swallowing one of them. The cause of the partridge's distress was now clear, and the farmer took up a stick and slew the snake. When she perceived the snake was dead she stopped her noise and hid in the bushes. The farmer then went away, but half an hour later came quietly near enough to the tree to see the partridge contentedly sitting on her nest.

Not the Old Racket.

The susceptible young man had asked the girl to be his wife.

"I am very sorry," she said, "very, very sorry; but it can never be. I can be a sis—"

His face grew hard.

"Let up on that, will you, please?" he growled. "It's bad enough for a fellow to be rejected, without having that sister racket fired at him."

"I beg pardon," she smiled coldly, "I had not intended anything of the sort. What I was about to say was that I would be a sister-in-law to you. For further particulars consult your good-looking brother. Good morning."

The Observant Young Woman.

"Now, Miss Flipkins," said the teacher of zoology in the seminary, "crustaceans wear their skeletons outside their bodies. The crab is an example; so is the lobster. Can you name another?"

"A baseball player does, I think."

"A baseball player?"

"Yes'm. When I went to the game yesterday I saw the catcher take a set of ribs and hang them over his chest, just too easy for anything."

Enough on the Cashier.

Mr. Manygirls—I have discovered that my cashier has robbed me of $20,000.

Friend—Have you notified the police?

Mr. Manygirls—Not yet. I'll give him one more chance to propose to my eldest daughter. If he doesn't do it then I shall have him locked up.—Texas Siftings.

He Was Cruel.

"Your quiet, easy indifference," said Mrs. Walkingbeam to her spouse, "aggravates me to such a degree that I am half dead with anger." "Ah, my dear," replied Mr. W., "let me give you a pointer about that." "What is it?" snapped Mrs. W. "No one should ever do things by halves."—Texas Siftings.

An Uneducated One.

"Sir, you are an educated pig." "Why, didn't you go to college?"—Truth.

He Was Rattled.

"Well, my dear," said a Houston (Tex.) man to the wife of his bosom, "shall I call for you, say at three o'clock this afternoon?"

"Call for me? Why, what for?" inquired his wife in an evident tone of surprise.

"To go to the milliner's after a hat."

"After a hat! Why, hubby, didn't we get a new hat for me only yesterday? What on earth are you talking about?"

"O, I forgot, surely. Why, yes, so we did. I see it now very plainly. It is only every other day you want a new hat."

By stepping out hastily and holding the door shut, he managed to escape merited punishment.—Alex Sweet, in Texas Siftings.

A Solution.

Prospect Parke—I wonder why it is that old men are so fond of giving good advice?

Fulton Ferris—Possibly because they are no longer able to furnish bad examples.—Brooklyn Life.

No Wonder It Is So Bad.

The poet felt the reverse of bright. He muttered a deep, deep curse. He had no idea, but he had to write. And so he ground out this verse.

Getting Down to Figures.

"How much is your fiancé worth?" asked the matter-of-fact girl of her romantic friend.

"Oh," replied the latter, enthusiastically, "my Fred is worth millions on millions."

"Of course, but I mean how much is he worth in cold cash?"

"Well, he has $14.75 in the bank."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

It Came True.

A widower aged 84 had married a young woman of 19. A local paper commented as follows on the happy event: "A year ago when his wife died his relatives expected that he would go crazy over the sad bereavement. This prognostication has come true."—Hamburger Nachrichten.

This Glorious Country.

Watts—There is one good thing about this country. The demagogue can't last long, no matter how big a following he has for a time.

Potts—That's so. Some other demagogue who is a little wilder generally comes along and takes his followers away.—Indianapolis Journal.

Very Incongruous.

Mrs. Bonton—Tell me all about Mrs. Beaumonde's ball, Mr. Hantton.

Mr. Hantton—Oh, I assure you, Mrs. Bonton, everything was in the most wretched taste. Her floral decorations were preposterous. Why, she put touch-me-nots on the wine table.—Judge.

A Public-Spirited Practitioner.

"Doctor, they tell me you are attending that young man next door of charge."

"Yes, and glad to do it. He's been practicing on a snare drum for the last six months, and now I have a chance to put an end to the nuisance."—Life.

Useful in Making an Impression.

Mr. Shallo—What in thunder did you go and buy a couple of steamer trunks for? We're only going for a little trip to the mountains.

Mrs. Shallo—Well, won't the neighbors see them when the expressman takes them away?—Chicago Record.

A Pointer.

Mabel—Papa is getting anxious about your calls. Yesterday he wanted to know who you were.

Applicant—I fought all through the war.

Pension Agent—With whom?

Applicant—My wife.—Hullo.

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

Shesed—It's odd about a mountain, isn't it? Hessed—What is? Shesed—That it never wears its spurs on its foot.

Little Dick—Let's hurry before mamma gets back. Little Dot—She won't be through for ever so long. She's gettin' the baby's picture taken by the instantaneous process.

A man saw an advertisement in a dime novel which read: "A sewing machine for fifty cents." He forwarded the fifty cents and received two needles and an awl.

Editor—I want an article written on "How to Make Poultry Pay." Contributor—Well, you'd better ask the man who does the fishing stories, then; he's the best liar on the staff.

Kittie—Don't you think it must have been awful to live in the garden of Eden? Teacher—Why? "Cause there wasn't anybody to invite to picnics, and they had such a good place for them."

Burglar Bill—These gipsies don't know anything. One of 'em told Gory Gus that he'd die on the gallows. Dynamite Dan—Well, didn't he? Burglar Bill—Naw. He died of old age while waitin' for a new trial.

Boatman—Yes, I need a boy about my boatyard. Now, suppose I was away and some stranger would come here to hire a sailboat. What questions would you ask him? Boy—I'd ask him if he knew how to swim.

Boatman—You'll do.

"But this is rhyme, sir," said the long haired caller in astonishment, "and not blank verse." "I spoke of it as 'blank' verse, sir," replied the editor, handing the manuscript back, "to save your feelings. It wasn't the word I really had in my mind."

A man was being tried for hog stealing in a Southwest Georgia justice court. He had an accomplice in the theft, to whom the judge said: "You knew this fellow stole that hog?" "I did, your honor." "And yet you helped him eat it?" "I did, your honor; but he was a sickly man, an' if he'd ha' eat that whole hog, he'd a died certain!"

STORYETTES.

A member of the London volunteer fire brigade did not appear at the scene of the conflagration until after the fire was under control. The chief of the fire department reproached him bitterly for his neglected duty. "It's not my fault," replied the fireman. "I live a long distance from the fire."

"That's no excuse. You must move closer to the next fire."

Signor Filippo Palma, a famous pianist of sixty years ago was surprised in his house by a creditor bent on his arrest, when Palma, without making any reply to the several reproachful invectives and angry menaces which the other threw out against him, by playing one arietta, then another, still sitting at his harpsichord, not only calmed the infuriated creditor, but so affected him that he insisted on lending Palma an additional ten pounds.

At a meeting of the Temperance union, held in a small Pennsylvania city some time since, the attendance consisted wholly of white people with one exception—the pastor of the African M. E. church. He was a full-blooded negro, as black as the absence of light. The colored brother was requested to address the meeting; and rising in his place, he gazed around upon his exclusively white audience solemnly. Then he said: "Brethren and sisters, I feel exactly like a huckleberry in a bowl of milk."

A boy in New Hampshire owned a big dog. Some carpenters were at work on a new house approached by a long hill from his home. The distance by road around the hill was a full mile. Each noon the dog was sent up to the new house with a jug of water. One warm day he set down the jug for a rest, and being unable to recover it, it rolled to the foot of the hill. He looked at it awhile, picked it up and trotted off, around the hill this time, and never afterward could he be persuaded to carry the jug by the short route.

The Handmill.

The handmill, composed of two flat circular stones, was in use almost all over the world until the fifteenth century. It was commonly worked by two women.

Expressing It More Politely.

THE OLD-FASHIONED STYLE

of pill gives you a feeling of horror when you see it and when you feel it. Like the "blunderbuss" of a former decade, it is big and clumsy, but not effective. In this century of enlightenment, you have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver troubles in the most effective way. For indigestion, Constipation, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headache, nothing has been found to equal these pills of Dr. Pierce's invention.

MR. SAMUEL BAKER, SR., of No. 181 Summit Ave., Philadelphia, N. J., says: "There is nothing that can compare with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, as Liver Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken."

BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

How Cold, Heat and the Passing of Trains Affect it.

As you stand in the exact middle of Brooklyn bridge you will observe where the compensation is made for the expansion and contraction by heat and cold. The bridge, resting on the four cables, is divided into two parts in the middle, and one end is arranged to slide over the other. You can put your hand on the railing and measure by the rubbing of the parts how far they have pulled back in winter or have overlapped in summer. If you watch from cool morning till mid-day you can see just how much the bridge has expanded in six hours.

But does the bridge which thus feels heat and cold also feel at all the strain of the weights that pass over it? Let us look and see. We stand again in the middle of the bridge and watch as a train of cars passes by. We notice where we looked before to see one end slide over the other that foot passengers do not seem to affect it in the least. When a heavy team passes by there is no observable movement. The bridge does not seem to have noticed it at all. But here comes a train of cars crossing the bridge. As it comes nearer we observe that the railing overlaps, the ends begin to move apart. They separate for an inch. Then, as the train passes, they come together again and in a moment they are in their normal position. The bridge has noticed that the train was passing. It did not break, it felt no painful strain, but it noticed and felt and acknowledged and registered the pressure which vainly attempted to break the cables.

A TRUE GHOST STORY.

The Request of the Apparition Was Carried Out to the Letter.

Here is a ghost story—one of a large class, and therefore perhaps more likely to be veracious, especially as it first saw the light in a London paper. It has an appearance of strict and even narrow truthfulness. There was a certain Captain Blomberg, of some regiment unknown, on active service in Africa. Five or six of his brother officers, he being engaged on duty two hundred miles away, were dining together. The door was opened and Captain Blomberg appeared, to everybody's surprise. Without speaking, he walked in and sat down in a vacant chair. They all asked him how he came there.

To their questions he made no reply; then one of them said, "Blomberg, are you mad?"

On this he rose and replied, "When you go back to London take my son to the queen and beg her to be his protector."

This said, he walked out of the room as he had come in. A few days afterward the news came that he had been killed in action on the very day and at the same hour of his appearance.

It is pleasing to record that the queen, on whose favor the gallant officer may have had some claims, did protect the son, who became chaplain-in-ordinary to her majesty, deputy clerk of the king's closet, canon residentiary of St. Paul's and vicar of St. Giles, Cripplegate.

A Story of Barnum.

Years ago, when Tom Thumb was Barnum's only attraction, he went to Saratoga and attempted to give an entertainment. The village fathers, however, scared him away by the price of their license, and he went to Ballston, the next town and advertised the performance. A special train was run from Saratoga and a great many went down on it. When the curtain went up, Barnum came out and made a little speech. "Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "it was my first intention to give this entertainment in Saratoga, but I soon discovered that there were some men in that place so much smaller than my famous Tom Thumb, that it would be useless to attempt competition with them."

Old John's Cough.

In a small village in Lancashire there is an old worthy known locally as "Old John." This man, among other ailments incident to old age, suffers from a very severe cough. One day the minister, while out for a walk, came across Old John leaning over the churchyard wall and coughing violently. Coming up to him the minister remarked:

"That's a nasty cough you have, John."

"Ay, sir, that it is," answered John; "but," he added, nodding his head in the direction of the churchyard, "there's many and many a poor soul o'er their ud be glad o' this."

The Modern Song of the Shirt.

It is found that shirts of white muslin and 2,200 linen may be produced at seventy-three cents per dozen. Each shirt passes through the hands of seventeen operatives, and each woman employed averages about one dozen complete shirts per day. The greater part of the cost of the production is the element of labor, and while the average pay is necessarily under seventy-three cents per day, some of the workwomen make a good deal more, while the superintendents, cutters, and the like are well paid. Machinery, in this instance, has enormously increased the power of labor and raised wages.

Scenery Out of Place.

The members of a theatrical company, traveling through Lake George on their way to Canada, were commenting upon the grandeur of the scenery, says Life, when the train came to a standstill. One of the men, becoming impatient, ventured out, and upon his return was asked the cause of the delay. "Well," he replied, "a piece of the scenery has fallen across the track."

A LIVELY OLD MAN.

At Seventy Years He Goes Around the Country Like a Boy.

Old Uncle Johnnie Irish, of Schley county, Georgia, is perhaps the fleetest-footed man in the state of his age, and he is now 70 years old. He walked, or rather ran, from his home to Buena Vista, twelve miles, for the purpose of getting the contract for carrying the mail from Buena Vista to Oglethorpe on foot. The mail on this route goes three times a week and the distance is thirty-six miles, which would make that many miles to be covered on foot every day except Sunday, but Uncle Johnnie thinks he can make it.

He lives fourteen miles from Ellaville, and says he has often made the trip in two hours. On one occasion he was going to Ellaville to meet a priest, who was to pass at a certain hour on the train. On the road he passed a man in a buggy, who offered the pedestrian a seat with him in the buggy. Uncle Johnnie thanked him very kindly, but said he was in a hurry that morning, and he trotted on up hill and through sand beds and left the gentleman in the buggy far in the rear.

He seldom walks when he is on the road, but trots, and makes six or seven miles an hour easily. His advantage over horse travel is that his gait is steady and travels hills and sand just as he does on level roads. He says he can cover five miles in half an hour.

He is a lively old gentleman, and as spry as a cat. He can relate many funny experiences concerning himself. He says he used to pull the plow while his wife held the handles, and on one occasion he took a notion he would have some fun and began to whicker and paw the dirt with his feet and ran away with the plow. He does not pull the plow any more now, but has risen to the dignity of plowing with a steer.

"That Mrs. Tedious is a miserable talker, isn't she?" "Her language, I thought, was beautiful." "Dear me, yes, but she talks all the time."

Indignant Constituent—Sir, you have proven utterly false to your principles. Green Statesman—Nothing of the sort. I merely wore them out and got a new set.

Little Gladys—Granny, go down on your hands and knees for a minute, please. Fond Grandmother—What am I to do that for, my pet? Little Gladys—Cause I want to draw an elephant.

A Disputed Case.

Many persons dispute the question as to whether or not baldness caused either by disease or neglect can be cured. In deciding the question allow us to say that most cases can be cured, while others can not. Only a specialist of years of experience can tell this. Professor Birkholz, the world-renowned German specialist of the Masonic Temple, Chicago, where those who desire a good head of hair or beard can consult him in private, and free of charge. After a thorough examination, which costs you nothing, we will tell you whether or not you may procure that trait of personal adornment so necessary to your existence, and if we find that the follicles are not all dead, we will treat you and guarantee the results or ask no pay. Call on or address Professor Birkholz, 1011 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

Send this notice to any first class druggist and he will get the Remedy for you at once, if he has not got it in stock.

Death = Knell = Sale.

TRUTH.

What better evidence could we have of the public implicitly believing our announcements than that our store is crowded daily. There must be big attractions for people. We've got would-be competitors on the run with their decoys, their fakes, which attract nothing but passing smiles from those who read their advertisements. No wonder other dealers' tempers are ruffled somewhat while we ride serenely on our successful tidal wave.

"Scrubbing-a-floor" and "moving-a-shelf" sales won't work here in Janesville. The people are onto such rackets, and are not to be caught by such palpably nonsensical and silly assertions. Values—genuine, honest, nineteenth century bargains—are what the people want. They find 'em here every time, and, enormous as our patronage is, Kimball, the old reliable is making new friends every hour, while retaining all the old ones with hands of forged steel.
